

Flourish

"...one of the best choices you could ever make in high school."
 ~ Gracy, 10th grade

"Flourish was inspirational and eye opening. Ms. Val is a positive woman who cares about each person individually & invests in each girl's life. I did not believe that I had the personality to be a leader, but this program showed me that anyone can be a leader." ~ Casey

"I come out of this program confident that I will be a good leader, and someone who can inspire and help others. I think every girl should go through this course once in their life, it really is eye opening." ~ Gabey

Flourish is one of the best investments you can make in your daughter's future.

Bruce Tulgan, internationally recognized as one of the leading experts on young people in the workplace, says the following about Generation Z (those born from 1995—2012):

"There is a growing nontechnical skill gap among the emerging young workforce. The basics of responsibility, problem solving, time management, and interpersonal communication are way too often missing in the new young workforce...This requires an ongoing process of teaching personal conduct, work habits, and the conduct of working relationships."

In other words, Generation Z needs leadership development. And high school is just the time to start. A 2012 CCL (Center for Creative Leadership) Leadership Insights survey about next generation leadership found that:

90% of the 492 professionals surveyed believed that leadership development should start before age 18.
